WALDO REPUBLICANS CAN WIN.

For many years Waldo county has been what we call in politics, a close county. When the Republicans have been united and enthusiastic and have subordinated their personal differences of opinion to party success, they have won. If we profit by the lessons taught in the past we shall win in the coming election, and that we do win is important, because success in 1918 will do much to strengthen us for the greater struggle which is to come in 1920. When we look at the situation logically, there is no reason seen why we should not win this year if we work for it, an old time Republican victory in the county and in the State. Our present State administration from a business standpoint has been a good one. It has been so good that the Democrats have not ventured to assail it. Our entire delegation in Congress has stood solidly with the President. The Democrats cannot deny that statement. Our Governor and his entire administration have supported the President unreservedly and even the Democrats admit it. When we come down to Waldo county, we think most people will say that our affairs have been managed wisely and well. All this being true the bewildered Democrats who have been journeying through the State, appealing for votes, have had but three propositions on which to base their appeal. First, that their nominee for Governor is a nice man. That's true. Second, that we must support the President and that the only way to do this is by voting the Democratic ticket. That's nonsense. Third, that Governor Milliken's management of reclassification was unwarranted and that his interpretation of the so-called dependency law cannot be justified from any point of view. This is not true, and any person with a receptive and well balanced mind can, by a very little investigation, satisfy himself that this third Democratic affirmation is a childish invention designed to mislead the public. The memory of the oldest Republican in Maine runneth not back to a time when the Democrats endeavored to build a campaign on such a flimsy foundation as this. They cannot win and most of them realize it. Even the hope that Republicans will vote for their nominee for Governor is fading. The Republican party split wide open in greenback times and again in 1914. Few of its members will, by their votes, again open a way for new dissensions to become rife.

CAN WE FEED THEM?

The last few weeks have been a critical period in the progress of the war, and have shown that the Allies were more than strong enough to hold their own with the enemy. Better than that the people of the United States and the Administration at Washington have shown that they have settled down to a determination to win the war regardless of the cost of blood and treasure. The effort is now what it should have been months ago. The German propaganda has been driven to cover. The I. W. W. is getting its just deserts. The rain coat swindlers have been arraigned. We are building ships. We are making arms, munitions and equipment of all needed kinds. We are raising an army which will be large enough to show Germany her mistake when she sneered at our military efficiency and power. We have already a force of about 1,500,000 brave men on the other side of the Atlantic who have been demonstrating to the Huns that they have not only courage but the knowledge of how to use their weapons effectively on the battlefield. The work of our navy in conjunction of those of our Allies has been marvelous in affording absolute safety to our transport. The danger of our defeat lies no longer over there but right here at home. We have demonstrated that we have the necessary military man power to force Germany to her knees, that we can arm, equip and land them in the fighting zones. But if the war lasts two years more, can we feed them? This is a serious and imminent danger. Not only must we keep the production of our farms and our mines up to a point much above the normal, but we must build up a greater railroad effectiveness. Food must be transported before it can be sent to our soldiers abroad or used by millions of our people here at home. Every week for several months the enlistments and draft, the shipyards and munition factories, have been drawing able bodied men from the railroads, the farms and the mines. When Mr. McAdoo became director-general of the railroads he at once increased the pay of employees. This caused some adverse criticism but failure to have done this would have caused an exodus from the trains, the work shops and the lines. Railroad men have asked, and perhaps when this article is read, will have been granted an increase of 40 percent in wages. If it has not and is not to be granted thousands of men who are now doing railroad work will seek more lucrative employment. Partial paralysis and perhaps utter demoralization of the transportation system of the country will then ensue. The urgent necessity for ships has resulted in the payment of wages which seem to be practically impossible to the railroads as corporations, although Mr. McAdoo holding the keys of the Treasury of the United States in his hands will be able to overbid the managers of government shipyards and take it out of the people by an increase of transportation rates. We may soon see that this competition for labor between these two government industries will have to be stopped or one of them must go out of business. Government control seems already to have admitted that it does not control wages and it is safe to say that wages will continue to go skyward until economic conditions or the power of the government checks the upward flight. But the inability to feed is a danger to be feared more out on the farms than on the transportation lines. The farmer cannot pay the wages current in government work because the prices he gets for his crops are not sufficient to enable him to do so. He does not have the United States Treasury for a pocket book, but if he had, and could bid up for help, keeping pace with the government industries, he would find that the average working man likes the looks of a dollar earned in a city or large town better than a dollar earned on a farm. The farmer needs help. His sons are in the army and "hired men" are in the shipyard. The question "can we feed them?" will be answered within the next 18 months, and when the answer comes it will come first from the farm and will be echoed from the freight train. Mr. Hoover is doing his work well but his work is neither plowing, sowing nor harvesting. He is preventing waste. His work is important but not fundamental. Can we feed them?

ANOTHER LIE NAILED

Our Democratic candidate for the United States Senate is gifted with a most fervid imagination. He has been repeating to the people of this State a most pathetic story about a lady who lived in the town of Sanford. She had a son in the Army. Her husband died last December. The story which this peerless elaborator tells, pictures the lady as having fallen into dire distresses by reason of ill-health and poverty and that she was taken to the poorhouse. Her son, hearing of this, came to his mother's relief. On arriving at the poorfarm the mother rushed into the arms of her son and expired. While telling this tale the narrator cannot refrain from weeping, and sobs choke his utterance until with the tones of a Demosthenes he condemns the Republican party collectively and Governor Milliken specifically for permitting this shocking inhumanity.

The following will show how much reliance can be placed in the honorable gentleman's political statements, whatever they may be, on any occasion.

SANFORD, MAINE, August 21, 1918.

Frank J. Ham, Augusta, Maine.

We, the undersigned municipal officers of the town of Sanford, on oath depose and say that it having been brought to our attention that certain false statements are being made throughout the State of Maine with reference to the care of Mary O'Brien, a former resident of Sanford, we desire to make the following statement of facts pertaining to her case. After the death of her husband, Mike O'Brien, in December, nineteen seventeen, Mrs. O'Brien was paid four dollars per week by this town as State aid of soldiers' dependants until February eighteen, nineteen eighteen, when she being under sixty years of age the town was not reimbursed for anything paid after January 1, nineteen eighteen. After that date, although there was no special appropriation by the town for the care of soldiers' dependants, the town of Sanford paid her rent, store bills and for the services of a nurse for a number of weeks when we determined that she would receive better care at the Ross Hospital and took her there where she remained for a period of about three weeks, during which time we paid for her board and care the sum of twenty-five dollars per week. At the end of which time her condition was much improved and we advised her that she could remain at the hospital and her expenses would be paid by the town. She, however, insisted on leaving the hospital and requested to be permitted to go to the town farm because she had a friend there by the name of Nora Hurlburt. She had been at the town farm approximately a week when her son Eddie came from Portland, took her from the town farm and removed her to Old Orchard. She remained at Old Orchard a short time. Her son then rented a house on North avenue in Sanford and took her there and she died there. While there was no special appropriation by the town for the care of soldiers' dependants we paid these bills

Chairman Civilian Relief.

THE DEMOCRATS HAVE ARRIVED.

On the 7th day of March, 1918, former President Taft contributed an article to the Philadelphia Public Ledger from which we clip the following extract: "This estimate and point of view argues a failure to appreciate the real duty of the United States in this war."

Our Allies do not expect us to carry on a joint debate with the German and Austrian chancellors. . . . We should raise an army of not less than five million men. . . . The quicker we act in this view the speedier and more certain our victory. The draft act must be amended to carry out such preparations."

From the speech of Colonel Roosevelt delivered March 28, 1918, at the Maine Republican convention, he declared that nothing but force would win the war and that an army of five million men should be raised with all possible speed to furnish this force. Both before and after the above dates, Chairman Hays of the Republican National Committee, in many public addresses, urged the passage of all constructive measures necessary to put into effect a "win the war now" policy.

August 14, 1918, General March, Chief of Staff, appeared before the Senate Committee on military affairs and in behalf of that part of the administration known as the War Department said: "The policy of the War Department is to put the maximum number of men in France with the idea of shortening the war. . . . The President has finally announced that the American military policy from this time on is centered on the western front and we have declined to be diverted from that one thing. . . . The purpose of America is to furnish enough man power to whip the Germans from now on. The only way that Germany can be whipped is by America going into this thing with her whole strength. . . . It is up to us to win the war. How long it will take will depend exactly upon what we do. If we drag along with this thing and put a small force over there, we will be playing Germany's game. It is my belief that with an American Army of 4,000,000 men in France, under one commander-in-chief, we can go through the German lines wherever we please." Having been drilled for almost six months by "constructive criticism" these watchful waiting warriors, have at last climbed to the high plateau of common sense and have joined forces with the Republicans. The Democrats have arrived. Now we will win the war.

THEY UPHELD HIS HANDS.

When the selective draft bill was before the House of Representatives numerous amendments were proposed and numerous votes were taken. When the bill had been worked into form and was likely to have a passage President Wilson urged an "essential modification." A further amendment which would put into the bill the wishes of Mr. Wilson, was voted on, when 164 Republicans voted for what the President wanted and 14 Republicans voted against it. On the other hand only 79 Democrats voted for what Mr. Wilson wanted and 118 voted against what he wanted. And now Br'er Newbert is wringing his hands and beseeching the people to elect Democrats to Congress to "uphold the hands of the President in carrying on the war." We believe Mr. Wilson is too much of a politician to write any letters to the citizens of Maine, recommending the election of Mr. Newbert to the Senate or Mr. McGillicuddy to the House of Representatives. It is written in the records that in our entire delegation in Congress there is no slacker in supporting the President. Not one of them voted against the "essential modification."

The administration at Washington has expressed a willingness to receive, and a desire for, "constructive criticism" for which it deserves unqualified commendation. Such criticism as has been offered has been both practical and constructive and has resulted in bringing about the speeding up of the war to the great satisfaction of the people. The Democratic candidate for Representative to Congress from the Second Congressional District of Maine exemplifies his idea of "constructive criticism" by saying publicly that the Governor of Maine is "a grown up kid who ought to be in knee pants." The Democratic candidate for the United States Senate standing on a public platform, calls the Governor an "old woman." Such expressions from men who aspire to sit in high places in Washington are not dignified. Maine will not send these flippant gentlemen to Congress. The need of this crisis is statesmen.

The Democratic candidate for United States Senator from this State is reported to have once said that he had German blood in his veins. Whether he is of German ancestry we do not know, neither do we know whether he ever claimed to be. But an article printed in another column of this paper seems to indicate to us that he is a direct descendant from Baron Munchausen and that "blood will tell." Heredity is very strong in some families.

Candidate Newbert is reported to have said in a public speech, that Mr. Payson Smith sought a position in Massachusetts because Governor Milliken would not reappoint him. We want to remind the readers of The Journal that Mr. Smith became Superintendent of Schools in Massachusetts several months before Mr. Milliken became Governor.

FOR FLETCHER'S

Our Republican Senators.

No one can question the earnest loyalty of the Republican minorities of the Senate and the House. They have with a few unimportant exceptions demonstrated their intense desire to promote the fighting of this war to a finish. Their record is far clearer than that of the Democrats. With notable exceptions, the Democratic leaders in the House opposed the war. With notable exceptions, the Democratic legislative leaders opposed the pivotal legislation making our conduct of the war possible—the Selective Draft. That act had to be put through the Lower House under the leadership of a Republican member of the Military Committee, because the ten Democratic members of that committee, including the chairman, the Democratic leader of the House, and the Democratic speaker, were opposed to its passage. They opposed the necessary amendment to the draft act in which the draft quota was to be based on the eligibles under Class One, instead of on population. The Democratic chairman opposed this and so did other leading Democrats. The President himself at first sided with the Democrats. The Republican leaders fought the amendment inserted for the purpose. Within two weeks the President was compelled to admit his error and withdrew from his former position. Thus the independent action of the Republicans averted a serious injury to the draft system.

No man can fairly charge the Republicans with seeking partisan ends. Their criticism has merely brought mistakes sharply to the public notice to secure their correction under stress of public opinion. They have given their hearty support to every war measure and every war appropriation, frequently in the face of misgiving and serious doubt. They voted $610,000,000 for aviation purposes, without any accompanying information as to how the money was to be expended. They were unwilling to embarrass the Administration or subject the expenditure to examination, though the result shows it would have been wise. The affirmative votes of Republicans have given, in many instances, great political power and prestige to the Democratic Administration, but there has been no Republican hesitation.

Now what of the next election? The Administration has sought to secure what is called a non-partisan return of loyal members of Congress. That non-partisanship seems to apply only in States where the Republican majorities would be overwhelming and where the withdrawal of Democratic opposition is a concession of no substance. It does not work where there is a chance for a Democratic candidate in either the Senate or the House. In Wisconsin, in which the Republican candidate for Senate was engaged in a life-and-death struggle with pro-German opposition, the President wrote a letter attacking him, and seeking the election of a warm personal supporter and Democrat, whom he had urged to run. In Michigan, a Republican State, where there is a division between the Republicans, the President has invited Mr. Ford, a former Republican, who rarely voted, and an extreme pacifist before the war, to become the Democratic candidate, with a view to securing another thick-and-thin supporter in the Senate. Politics was not adjoined in the acts. Such a policy of so-called non-partisanship, if carried to success, will result in a Democratic Congress completely subject to the discipline of the Administration, furnishing no stimulus to definite policy and no impulse to prompt action.

Prayer meeting will be omitted this week to give place to the Northport Campmeeting services, where a new inspiration and enthusiasm is being kindled. Plan to go there for some of the services. Meetings, mornings at 10.00; afternoons at 2.00; evenings at 7.30. Meetings close Friday night. People's church has open doors for all and strangers in town are especially welcome.

The last regular Sunday morning service for the present season at Saint Margaret's Chapel was conducted by the Rev. Geoffrey M. Brinley of St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., on August 25th, and was a notable one. The baptismal font, presented to the chapel by Mrs. Horace H. Pearson of Brookline, Mass., in memory of her mother, the late Alma C. Field, was consecrated, following which a brief memorial service was held for Mrs. Allan McLane. The Rev. Mr. Brinley spoke with much feeling of the blameless Christian life of Mrs. McLane, of her devotion to the church, and of her tireless efforts in helping to make the erection of Saint Margaret's possible. It is hoped to place a stained glass window or some other fitting memorial to Mrs. McLane in the church at some future time. The morning service closed with the celebration of Holy Communion, the handsome new altar cloths made by Miss Gammons in memory of her parents being used for the first time.

TO CONSERVE GASOLINE.

WASHINGTON, August 27. The Fuel Administration today called on the public east of the Mississippi to stop using gasoline for passenger automobiles, motor cycles and motor boats on Sunday until further notice. Unless voluntary action on the part of the public improves the gasoline situation, notice is given that the administration will be obliged to enforce prohibitory regulations.

The following exceptions to the request are made:

Tractors and motor trucks engaged in hauling of freight, physicians' automobiles, ambulances, fire and police apparatus, public utilities, repair wagons, gasoline railway equipment, and motor vehicles used by persons living in rural communities without other means of transportation.

Automobiles, for hire, including taxicabs, are included in the class of motor vehicles that are expected to observe the request.

W. C. T. U. NOTES.

For thirteen months, July, 1917-August, 1918, the W. C. T. U. has adopted 426 war orphans. The goal set for the current year is 1000. State, county or local unions, or individuals give $36.50 to support one child one year, the money sent the county and State treasurers being sent to the national treasurer.

Up to the middle of August, the W. C. T. U. has given 21 stereomicrographs to the cantonments and two to the naval stations of the Great Lakes, Ill., and Newport, R. I.

Immediately on receipt of the news that Sen. McAdoo had prohibited the sale of liquor on every train and every railroad station under federal control, Miss Anna A. Gordon, president of the National W. C. T. U., on behalf of our organization, sent a letter to Mr. McAdoo expressing appreciation of his official order. "We believe," she wrote, "that this action will greatly aid the civilian army in its win-the-war activities."

NORTHPORT.

The Methodist campmeeting is in session at the auditorium this week with Rev. Albert E. Morris of Bangor as leader. Rev. Charles W. Martin of Belfast occupied the pulpit Monday and Rev. Albert E. Luce of Rockland Tuesday evening. The music, under the direction of Rev. Frederick Palladino of Bucksport, is a strong feature of the many interesting sessions. There is a large attendance and the spirit is unusually good.

At the musicale on Sunday afternoon at the Country Club, Mrs. Dorothy Miller Duckwitz of Toledo, a pupil of Copeland, the Boston composer, was the soloist. Her selections were well chosen and showed her brilliant style to good advantage. Each number was enthusiastically received and she received well deserved applause. Mrs. Duckwitz was entertained at dinner by Mrs. G. G. Hall of Boston, a summer resident of Lincolnville, where Mr. Copeland is receiving pupils this season.

The cabaret at the Country Club Tuesday evening was an unqualified success. At least 180 people were served at the 6.30 supper and every seat and all the standing room taken at the evening program which included readings and stories by James Bradbury of New York; vocal solos by Mrs. Baronson, a summer resident at Lincolnville Beach; the interpretation of Mother Goose stories by Miss Evelyn Flanders. The mock trial, a genuine burlesque and a free lance factory of "slams" was very amusing even to those involved. Charles E. Kennedy was judge; C. O. Dickey, sheriff; Cecil Clay, attorney for the State and Miss Anne M. Kittredge for the defendant, when Ralph M. Flanders was given trial for the larceny of a bottle of New England rum. Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Parker, Mrs. S. C. Pattee and Fred T. Chase were the witnesses. The prisoner was found guilty and ordered to set up for the court, etc., and it was further ordered that he be made president of the Club the coming year.

Government Navigation School at Rockland.

With 40 students now in attendance the Government's Free Navigation School in Rockland has established a new record. Twelve of these students will go to Bangor during the week to take their examinations before the federal steamboat inspectors, but with nearly 20 applications on file there is little danger that the school will be reduced in size.

In the new graduating class are Martin B. Salisbury, Bar Harbor; Herbert R. Dyer, Searsport; Cecil H. Farnham, West Brooksville; Clarence L. Smith, Atlantic; Wildred H. Conary, Deer Isle; Forrest K. Torrey, Tenant's Harbor; Edwin B. Greenlaw, Sunset; Hersey L. Philbrook and Harris E. Kallach, Thomaston; Everett W. Turner, North Haven; Swansy G. Burns and Roy Morton, Friendship; Donald Burnley and Charles Rich, Rockland. The newly entered students are Camille R. Chelin, East Indies; Walter C. Brown and Rodney F. Gray, Castine; Harry C. Judkins, Stonington; Blanchard F. Orne and Lew J. Wallace, Friendship; Wesley M. Stimson and Aubrey Delano, Vinal Haven; Frank H. Powers and Arthur E. Marshall, Deer Isle; Harry C. Bridges, Rockland.

Mr. Chelin is a fine type of the East Indian sailor, who has been mate for a number of years in the vessels of the Snow fleet. He is well grounded in navigation lore and bids fair to make a most capable deck officer. Instructor Charles R. Magee, and his assistant, Milton A. Philbrook, are well pleased with the caliber of the men composing the present school and the deep interest which is being shown in the three daily sessions.

Thus far the Rockland school has graduated 112 men.

He sees to the conveying of about 150 scholars and friends of the school to the picnic by auto and assisted by his good wife, the superintendent of the primary department, every effort is made to make the day a red letter day to all concerned. He provided a fine treat of bananas, chocolates and peanuts. Invest in Central Maine Stockand You Invest in an Industry Essential to War Work and Coal Conservation

THE Central Maine Power Company has had two plain duties in this war.

1. To aid in saving coal.
2. To supply the companies doing war work with all the power they could use.

The first task was easy. Power developed so largely from water automatically saves coal.

To supply the war-time demands of shipping and other industries was a task worthy of the best efforts of a big company. Some of the war industries in our territory are:

- (a) Shipping at Bath, on Penobscot Bay, in Richmond, Rockland, Belfast and Wiscasset.
- (b) Foundries and machine shops at Dexter.
- (c) Woolen mills at Guilford, Sangerville, Corinna, Dexter, Pittsfield, Waterville and Winthrop, making army blankets and clothing.
- (d) Shoe shops at Augusta, Gardiner, Hallowell and Richmond, making army shoes.

In order to supply these war industries with the power they needed and to generate it from water power (rather than from coal) we had to develop additional water power. To develop it quickly and economically we turned naturally to one of our undeveloped sources of power at Rice Riots on the Messalonskee Stream in the town of Oakland.

To provide funds for this necessary development and to make other additions to its property essential to the proper handling of the war business, the Central Maine Power Company has issued $300,000 par value of 7% preferred stock. The price of this stock is $107.50 per share and accrued dividend.

This stock offers you, the Company believes, a sound and profitable investment in a corporation that is playing a big part in coal conservation and war work—in a company assured of an adequate demand for its products in peace time as well as in war time. Why not write us or call on us for full information about this stock—an attractive investment netting 6 1/2%.

Advance Fall Fashions.

Plain Tailored and Fur Trimmed Models.
Fall Coat Trends. Service Dresses.
(Correspondence of The Journal.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 26, 1918. Not all women busy with war work wear uniforms but nearly everyone has adopted some sort of service dress, that goes fittingly wherever her activities call, and keeps her looking trim and fit all the time. Collars and cuffs or vestes of washable organdie, pique, linens or gingham that are easily detached for laundering, and lend a note of freshness, often are the only trimming touch on a gown of satin, foulard gingham or calico. One is quite as smartly worn as the other with rather more prestige for the calico as the latest revival.

A Practical Model.

Worn with the smartest of white foot-wear, and a hat that said Paris in every point of its simple detail was a dress of black calico polka spotted in white in the small dots characteristic of this fabric

8882 Dress

McCall Design

The straight full skirt measured not more than a yard and a half at the foot and was unbroken but for narrow side panels that formed pockets just below the hip line. The plain little waist had its coat sleeve finished by an eight inch cuff of fine pique that belted at the hand and was caught together at the top by four penny size white pearl buttons. The softly draped collar suggested a small hood, and was caught with a long bar pin in front. A service dress of black light weight satin similarly plain was relieved by a sash girde tied at the centre back, and by an impressively dainty vestee with a rolling collar, which was edged with small buttons on one side and buttonholes on the other, a continuation of the fastenings of the vest.

Smart Jersey Dresses.

Jersey dresses in white or light beige tones, simply designed often have a touch of handsome embroidery as their sole and sufficient garniture, and with this a hat goes fittingly from plain dark sailor, to a wide brimmed transparent straw, or one of the Blue Devil tams of velvet that suit a youthful face and figure.

WATCH FOR ENEMY SPIES.

It becomes increasingly evident in connection with submarine activities off the New England Coast that enemy spies are at liberty in this State, in the opinion of the Maine committee on public safety. The committee is in possession of evidence of this nature and that evidence has been presented to the proper channels. Information which has come to the committee indicate many suspicious circumstances along the Maine coast.

In fact, it is well established that an officer of an enemy submarine landed and was seen by the captain and mate of a steamer sunk by that submarine. It is also well established that time and sailings must be known to the enemy, therefore, the committee urges upon every member of its organization throughout the State to keep a vigilant lookout for strangers in their vicinity who might be suspected of such work, to act promptly in an emergency and to make every effort to curtail the work of the enemy spies.

GREATEST CHANCE A MAN EVER HAD

Can Help Himself, His Boy and His Country by Buying
Liberty Bonds

WE MUST ALL DO OUR BEST

Scores of Things We Can Do Without Which Seem Necessities and Yet
Are Really Luxuries—Get Into the Fight.

By EDWARD BOK.

Editor of the Ladies' Home Journal.

Each time a new liberty loan is announced we should hail it with pleasure. For years we have used the phrase "as good as a government bond" as indicating the safest investment possible, but before the war it was impossible for the average investor to secure a government bond. Periodically an issue was made, but it was so quickly subscribed for by the bankers that the small investor had little chance. Now we all have a chance, and a chance at all that we can afford to buy.

It will, of course, be argued by some when the fourth Liberty loan is announced that they have not as yet paid for the third loan bonds for which they subscribed. That may be true, but that is no reason why we should fail to subscribe again. Before the fifth loan can be issued we will have paid for the third loan bonds and begun paying for the fourth loan bonds that we subscribed for. Thus if we go on we will have a distinct part in each loan have each month put aside a sum for the best investment on earth, have acquired the steady habit of saving, and when the last loan is announced and we shall have taken part of that and paid for it, we shall find ourselves in possession of a collection of bonds that will make us proud of the share we took in the war and have a comfortable "nest egg" in the bargain.

Must Do Our Best.

Never, really, was there such a stimulant given us to do without the non-essential and save. Not only is it saving for our boys and helping them to fight, but it is saving for them when they come home and saving for ourselves. Is there, in imagination, a prouder parent than that father or mother, who when his or her boy comes home from serving his country, can open a drawer and pull out a neat little package of Liberty loan bonds? That is what we mean by "keeping the home-fires burning," by "backing up our boys" by "doing our bit." The only point is that we should change the latter to "doing our best." We've done our "bit" in the past loans; in this fourth loan we should do our "best." We want to be able to show our boy a bond or two or three in each loan, not have him ask, "Oh, didn't you get in on the fourth?"

It isn't as if we can't do it. We can if we will set our minds to the job of real saving. There are scores of things we can do without which seem necessities and yet are really luxuries. Our boys "over there" are doing without them and offering their lives besides. We are not asked for the latter. All we are asked to do is to do without here something and there something, and by doing this we are patriots! And all the time while we are adjudged patriots we are investing our money in the safest thing on earth and getting a good interest on it in the bargain. Frankly, can you "beat it"? It is something to ask a man to give money, without a return, and be a patriot. But in these Liberty loans all the government asks that a man shall loan his money, safely guarded and at a good interest, and still he is a patriot.

Must Lend or Be Taxed.

Another point we must remember, taking this whole matter simply on an economic basis: That the more of these Liberty bonds we buy the less taxes we will have to pay. The government must have the money to keep up the war and feed and clothe our boys. This year it needs about $24,000,000,000. This amount it must get from the people. And if the people won't loan in bonds, it must take in taxes. Hence, the more we loan the less we will have to give.

It's all a question of saving, saving, saving—and never was there a better time to begin than now with the Liberty loan bonds as an attraction. The man who has no ready money with which to buy the bonds is the very man that the government wants above all other classes of men to loan it his money; his money saved here with a dollar and there with a quarter. It is the finest kind of money to give to our country: the money that we save by some act of self-denial. It isn't the money that we have in the bank that we want to draw out and buy Liberty bonds with; it is the money that next winter we can save, month by month. That is really helping your boy "over there"; helping the government to keep him warm and fit, and incidentally, helping yourself to lay by the most valuable pieces of paper that you can buy, put away, and all the time getting a good interest on them.

Black Eye for the Hun.

Seventeen million individual subscribers were part of the third Liberty loan. That means one in every six of the population of the United States. But there is no reason why with the coming fourth loan this should not be

THE Y. W. C. A. DRIVE.

BOSTON, Aug. 21. With Mrs. Harold Peabody of Boston, campaign "boss" for New England, a tremendous net work of organization is being put up in Boston where headquarters for the fall war fund campaign of the New England Division of the Y. W. C. A. are opened. Not a town or hamlet in all New England will be overlooked. There will be a prominent woman named in every State as organizer and another as chairman of the fall campaign. Every country will be organized and prominent club women are rallying to the drive. Miss Mary E. Dunbar, formerly general secretary of the Portland, Maine, Y. W. C. A., is execu-changed to one in every three persons in the United States and finally that every person in the United States shall own a bond. Fancy the state of mind of the German war lords if they were made to realize that every one of the one hundred millions of Americans were so determined to beat them that they had all invested with the one idea to beat them. Would the war continue another year? Most unlikely. Most of us ask each other or ourselves "When will this war end?" There is no quicker way to end it than to make it possible for our government to throw into it every resource that we have. The moment that the Prussian war lords realize this fact, they will come to their senses. And the only way to bring this about is for you and me to do our part and do it fully. This means to loan every cent we can to the government; hold nothing back, but give it our all. It isn't a question of when can we end the war; it is a question of when you or I end the war. It is what you and I do. It is the drop of water, multiplied by millions, that makes the deluge. It is what you and I do in our small way that, multiplied by the millions, makes for a united strength before which nothing can stand. Win the war we will, but when we win it depends upon us. "It can't be too soon for me," we say. Then let's get busy, real busy, and save and loan to our government what we save.

LIBERTY LOAN AND SAVINGS BANKS.

The effect of the Liberty Loans and the War Savings Stamps on savings banks' deposits has been watched with keen interest by economists and financiers. The experience of England was very encouraging; in the year 1916 the English small depositors purchased billions of dollars of war bonds and at the same time increased their deposits in savings banks over $80,000,000.

The belief is entertained that the result in America has been very similar to that in England, and that despite the purchase by the American people of some $10,000,000,000 of Liberty Bonds and $500,000,000 of War Savings Stamps, a very fair proportion of which were purchased by savings banks depositors, savings banks deposits have increased.

Full reports have been received from the savings banks in New York State. They show a decrease in deposits for the last year of only $8,000,000, but an increase of 21,252 depositors. The loss in deposits is insignificant; the increase in the number of depositors very significant. With increased cost of living and other war conditions, the decrease in deposits might well be expected; the increase of depositors shows that the saving habit is greatly growing in our country.

WAR FINANCE CORPORATION AIDS FARMERS.

In compliance with telegraphed instructions from Secretary McAdoo, the War Finance Corporation has wired Federal reserve banks at Dallas, Kansas City, and Minneapolis to notify banks and trust companies in their respective districts, nonmembers as well as members of the Federal Reserve System, of the willingness of the corporation to make advances to those financial institutions which had made loans to farmers and cattlemen.

Droughts in these districts are creating a serious condition for the farmers and this action is taken to relieve the situation. Secretary McAdoo stated that no industry was more vital to the war than raising wheat, corn, live stock, and other food products, and that the banks should make loans on the notes of farmers since they are engaged in an industry not only necessary and contributory to the winning of the war but vital to it.

AN AUGUST CONCEPTION.

Samuel Taylor Coleridge, poet and essayist, writing some 75 years ago, said:

"The possible destiny of the United States of America as a Nation of a hundred million of free men, stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific, living under the laws of Alfred and speaking the language of Shakespeare and Milton, is an august conception."

The United States is now a Nation of a hundred million or more, stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and reaching out east takes in Hawaii and the Philippines, in the north Alaska, and in the south the Panama Canal. But grander than its physical is its moral greatness. Its fairness and justice, its courage and power, its maintenance of right and freedom cover the world.

The destiny the United States is now fulfilling is a more august conception than even the imagination of the author of Kubla Khan conceived of less than a century ago.

SAVING AND SERVING.

By economizing in consumption and with the resultant saving purchasing the Government's war securities the American citizen performs a double duty. The citizen and the Government can not use the same labor and material; if the citizen uses it, the material and the labor can not be used by the Government. If the citizen economizes in consumption, so much material and labor and transportation space is left free for Government uses. And when the saving effected is lent to the Government more money is thus placed at the disposal of the Government.

A Successful Red Cross Entertainment at Searspott.

Probably a larger and more enthusiastic audience never congregated in Union hall than that which was present on Friday evening, August 16th, to witness the entertainment given by local amateurs under the direction of Miss Louise Dickerson Lieb, for the benefit of the Red Cross. The seating capacity of the hall was taxed to its utmost and many were present from adjoining towns.

Madame Graudet, Miss Amelia Ford, Miss Lucy True Ross, Miss Isobel Frame, Miss Amelia Clewley Ford, in the role of Madame Graudet, deserves special mention. Miss Ford's acting was admirable and the part of the French mother with a finish which was admirable.

Many points in the little play were really thrilling and in the scene where the bandages are removed from Jean's eyes, the big audience was breathlessly held. The play ended with the Star Spangled Banner. Several clever vaudeville acts followed. The Postage Stamp sketch by Miss Lucy Ross and Roland Darling was extremely good and this was followed by a catchy song and dance, "My Sweetie" by Miss Louise Ford and Irving Rich, who got a big hand and was repeated. Miss Harriet Roulstone gave a novel little song, "Mary's Hats," which was encored, then came Sidewalk Patter; Serving a Subpoena by Miss Louise Ford and Roland Darling, to say nothing of the dog, "Bunker Bean," who proved himself a gentleman under trying circumstances. An effective Indian dance ended this number. Story Trundy sang "They Go Wild Over Me," and pleased the audience as usual. He was recalled.

The last number was "Somewhere in France is the Lily" sung by Miss Harriet Roulstone in appropriate costume, with Miss Florence Colcord, Miss Annie Whit-tier, Mrs. Story Trundy, Miss Lucy Ross and Louise Ford, as the English roses, French fleur de lis, Scotch thistle, Irish shamrock and American golden rod, in a charming dance. This was most effective and was a very pleasing number. Miss Ford as golden rod was perfectly charming. The natural grace and artistic finish of her dancing make her numbers a delight. Renfrew Wilson, as announcer in character costume was as popular with the audience as usual, and Mrs. Sumner C. Pattie was an excellent accompanist. A feature of the program which was not planned, was the appearance up front of little Virginia Trundy who went to look out for her "Daddy." To Miss Sally Dow who made the attractive posters; to Mrs. L. C. Havener who made costumes and hats; Harry Merrithew, drummer; Miss Ethel Nichols, and in fact all who helped to make the affair the huge success that it was, thanks are rendered. A dance followed the entertainment, with music by Charles Green and Mrs. S. C. Pattie. Between the acts of the entertainment, announcement was made of the winner of the flag, the lucky number being 38.

About $45 was realized from the sale of the flag and a good sum from the red, white and blue buttonnieres. Edmund Eno dispensed ice cream, giving 10 per cent of the proceeds to the fund. A large sum will be realized, the exact amount to be announced later.

The whole affair was planned and carried out by Miss Louise Dickerson Lieb of Washington, D. C.

The way for re-imbursement in the case of aged and dependent relatives, other than the father or mother, but on the other hand re-imbursement to the cases of relatives who are the resident of a house in which the soldier, sailor or marine is the head.

Again the restrictions are laid only upon the Governor and his staff in determining amounts to be paid to cities and towns. They do not prevent the cities and towns from paying any amount that may be necessary and any financial aid so paid may be paid without creating the same burden.

In interpreting this provision of the law, we were advised by the attorney general that the words "the cities and towns" meant the cities and towns which appear to mean that we were authorized to reimburse cities and towns only for payments made where all three conditions were present, that is, age, infirmity and dependency.

INTERPRETATION OF 'AGED'.

The question of the interpretation of the word "aged" in terms of years was the subject of long and careful consideration. Bear in mind that we are considering the question of reimbursement to the cities and towns. This question is always decided by the municipal officers and should be granted to any city or town. GOVERNMENT HALL.

Further to call your attention to the fact that while the Governor's Council were obliged to comply with the law, in the case of cities and towns, we have gone far beyond the limits imposed upon us in seeing that every case of need was properly handled. Each distress and income tax has been occasioned by the Government. The Federal Government has been the cause of the distress and income tax. The Federal Government has been the cause of the distress and income tax.

GYRATORY GENTLEMEN.

This detailed recital of the real facts regarding the draft law and the providing for aid for the dependents of soldiers has been before you for some length of time in order to show you the true situation and to show you the true situation and to show you the true situation.

PROUD RECORD OF MAINE.

Some of us have been straining every nerve and working night and day to help win the war and at the same time protect the physical, moral and financial health of the State of Maine against the strain of war conditions and the reconstruction period that must follow.

special record possible by laying the foundation for a sound business program and enacting the necessary war measures. There has been hearty team-work among the heads of State departments in the great task and the strong and capable men who compose the present Executive Council have used their business judgment and executive energy without stint.

Members of exemption boards and the various advisory committees, members of public safety committees and the various welfare and relief organizations have worked devotedly for the common purpose. Any of us are willing to be superseded any time by those who can show better fitness for the task in hand.

The magnificent response of the State of Maine to the challenge of the war program has been the natural expression of the patriotism of our people. It has been our task to stimulate and supplement these patriotic impulses by every resource at the command of the State government and to keep the war activities of our State in close harmony with the program of the National Government.

Maine stands first in volunteer enlistments considering all branches of the service, has the record for the entire country for prompt recruiting and equipping a complete national Guard regiment, and has now mustered in a fourth National Guard Organization known officially as the Third Maine Infantry because the natural patriotism of our people was supplemented by proper recruiting campaigns at the State's expense.

No unit of Maine troops has lacked any necessary comfort or equipment. Whatever was lacking from the Federal Government we have purchased at the State's expense without delay and without red tape.

Before 3 o'clock in the morning after President Wilson read his war message, we had telegrams on the wire clinching the necessary equipment for raising our regiments to war strength.

By securing our own patrol-boat fleet, we provided for the protection of the Maine coast long before this result could otherwise have been accomplished by the Navy Department.

It was not by chance but by a long and patient process of negotiation with the bureau of labor and immigration in Washington and the Canadian Government that restrictions on the Canadian border were modified so as to avert the disastrous labor shortage that threatened our industrial and agricultural interests.

Through the Public Safety Committee and in co-operation with the Federal Government we have conducted a steady campaign for increased food production and have led the nation both in point of time and efficiency in solving the problem of supplementing farm labor by the use of boys of high school age.

A committee on shipbuilding under the able leadership of Governor Cobb, after many conferences with the shipping board in Washington succeeded in adapting the construction plans to Maine conditions so as to allow the placing of more than $8,000,000 worth of contracts in Maine shipyards.

In co-operation with the Federal Government and especially with the surgeon-general of the army, sanitation zones around important naval and shipyard points have been marked out and campaigns are in progress in the centers of population in the State against the special diseases most injurious to the health of our Army and Navy.

The earliest and most efficient relief for the suffering has been the relief that was mobilized by telephone from my office and sent from the State of Maine. Maine, in fact, was the only State which sent a relief expedition and paid its expenses out of State funds.

Special arrangements have been made for the reception of returned soldiers afflicted with tuberculosis or with shell shock and a plan is now being worked out for surgical treatment at the State's expense for men of draft age who can by such means be made available for military service.

Maine was the first State to present a complete plan in Washington for vocational training in co-operation with the Federal Government and the first to provide such training at State expense for men of draft age.

Maine has also put into operation at her own expense a more thorough and complete organization for apprehension of slackers, delinquents and deserters than I know of in any other State.

These activities and many others that might be mentioned have presented problems without precedent, have required frequent contact and close co-operation with the Maine department in Washington and various departments of the Federal Government. We have had no time to brag about what we have been doing and many of our most difficult and delicate problems have been so involved with military matters that they could not be made public at all.

MONEY SAVED IN TAXES.

"High prices resulting from war conditions have introduced the same perplexities and emergencies into the business affairs of the State that confront the average man in his family expense account. I have no time to tell you in detail how these problems have been met. It is sufficient to say that every need of each State department and institution has been fully met, the road-building program has been continued at less increase above normal cost and with less overhead charge than in any other eastern State. All building projects except those which were delayed with the approval of the Capital Issues Board have been carried on, and yet in the fact of war conditions and increased costs, we have run the State at a tax rate of two mills less per year than the auditor of the previous administration estimated would be necessary. This has meant a saving of more than two million dollars in the two years and any of you gentlemen can note the saving in your own particular county from the following list of figures:

County	Saving in Two Years
Androscoggin	$111,282.75
Aroostook	172,285.91
Cumberland	435,662.47
Franklin	58,944.46
Hancock	50,915.98
Hennepin	157,072.82
Knox	66,798.40
Lincoln	94,189.57
Oxford	237,189.57
Penobscot	57,139.87
Piscataquis	112,841.59
Sagadahoc	146,922.94
Sherburne	12,044.36
Washington	174,377.00

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

"There was a substantial saving even from these figures in the year 1917 as indicated by the contingent fund balance of over $300,000 on July first, 1918, a balance accumulated out of unexpended appropriations for the previous year. There will also be a substantial balance on the right side at the end of the year 1918.

"These results were made possible in the first instance by the wise act of the Legislature in adopting the budget system and further by close personal attention of the heads of departments, members of the Executive Council and myself to every detail of the State's business. No checking account is no check for the State of Maine outside the State Treasury. All receipts and disbursements are to and from the treasury itself. The record of each day's transaction is laid on my desk at the close of the day's business. Employees are paid weekly and merchandise is paid for every two weeks, and all items to be paid pass under my eye and are approved by the committee of the Governor's Council before payment is actually made.

NO CONCEALMENT: NO APOLOGY.

In general, without taking more of your time in a discussion of the details, let me say that the present State Administration has nothing to conceal and nothing to apologize for. We have treated the State's business from a business standpoint and not from a political standpoint. We have carried out unflinchingly our promise to the people that the resources of the State would be used to the utmost for the rigid and impartial enforcement of all the laws of the State. I have always been accessible to any citizen who wanted to see me for any purpose and have listened patiently to all the advice that has been given me about appointments and all other public questions, but I have made my own decisions and no man or group of men could ever dictate what course of action I should follow. I have consistently refused to remove Democrats from office during the term for which they have been appointed unless I had a sufficient reason other than the fact that he belonged to a different political party, and no political influence has been sufficient to secure the appointment of even a janitor to the State House, unless we felt satisfied that he was qualified for his job. I am not indifferent to political success or failure nor am I ignorant of the supposed requirements of political expediency, but I can honestly say to you this afternoon that not since taking the oath of office in January, 1917, have I turned aside from what seemed to be my duty because of the possible political effect of any action of mine.

The present State administration in Maine stands for complete co-operation with the Federal government in every item of the war program for management of the State's affairs in accordance with business principles and for uniform, uncompromising enforcement of the law in common with the Maine delegation at Washington, we are in the midst of a difficult and delicate task. It is for the voters of Maine to say whether they wish to endorse the sort of program we have offered them and keep the experienced crew on the job."

No Stronger Evidence Can Be Had in Belfast.

Look well to their record. What they have done many times in years gone by is the best guarantee of future results. Anyone with a bad back; any reader suffering from urinary troubles, from kidney ills, should find comforting words in the following statement:

W. J. Heal, retired farmer, 60 Miller street, Belfast, says: "I suffered with my back and kidneys. At times my back ached so it was difficult for me to stoop over or straighten up. Since then when my back troubled me, I got Doan's Kidney Pills and they soon removed the backache and corrected all difficulties with my kidneys. I take this medicine occasionally and it keeps my kidneys in fine shape." (Statement given November 19, 1904.)

Colds Affect the Kidneys.

On November 1, 1916, Mr. Heal said: "I have every bit as much confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills now as when I gave my former endorsement of them. At times, when I have caught cold, I have noticed a slight return of kidney trouble, but Doan's Kidney Pills have never failed to give me prompt relief."

What might have been a very serious runaway occurred on Church street Monday, when a pair of horses owned by Alvah C. Treat, and hauling two long, heavy poles, became frightened in the Marsh woods and dashed down the hill upon the run, fortunately going one on each side of a telegraph pole which stopped their flight throwing both horses to the ground. To the surprise of onlookers, no bones were broken or any apparent injuries sustained. The young couple left later by auto for a wedding trip to Milo, where they will spend several days with the bride's uncle and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Treat. Only the immediate family of the bride

On Thursday last, "all roads led to Rockland," people coming from all directions to witness the launching of the four-masted schooner, Paul E. Thurlow, built by Master John Wardwell and showing the fine lines for which the Wardwell family is famous. The fog of the morning was dispelled by noon-time, and at 12:15 the beautiful vessel slipped easily along the ways and took the water as gracefully as a swan. She was christened with flowers and a fine band lent interest to the occasion. Thousands of people witnessed what was universally called a beautiful launching. Among those present from Stockton were the following: Dr. Herman Hichborn and wife, Dr. Everett Hichborn, wife and her brother, Mr. Adrian Burke, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Hichborn; Capt.
